PIRATES GENERAL MANAGER

LARRY DOUGHTY is in his second season as Senior Vice President and General Manager for Business Operations for the Pittsburgh Pirates. He had assumed the duties of the position on an interim basis on October 4, 1988 before being named to his current post on November 7, 1988.

His employment with the Pirates began on October 26, 1987 when he was named Assistant to the General Manager. In that capacity, he played a significant role in contract negotiations of major league players, the evaluation of major and minor league personnel and the operation of the Pirate City (the club's spring training facility in Bradenton, Florida).

Doughty inherited a farm system that wasn't as strong as he would have liked. He and his staff have worked to make improvements in that area with the infusion of younger talent. This was made evident by last year's draft, Doughty's first as General Manager. It was dominated by high school picks, including the number-one choice, shortstop Willie Greene of Jones County High School in Gray, Georgia.

"I feel we've reached the point where we have a steady flow of talent moving upward through the minor league system," Doughty said. "When I took over in 1988, the system needed some restructuring. The 1989 draft was strong and the young players we selected should be able to move through the system at a steady pace."

Doughty believes the basic formula for building a winning team is a strong farm system, occasional acquisitions and experienced instruction at the minor league level. He feels the 1990 Pirates will more closely fit that definition.

Larry Doughty

"We've got the minor league system productive again," Doughty explained. "In 1989, we had a serious problem with injuries at the major league level. We've improved our ballclub with trades and free agent signings in the areas of catching and pitching. I feel strongly that we'll have a healthy and hungry club in 1990."

Doughty came to Pittsburgh after spending 17 years in the Cincinnati Reds' organization. He was scouting supervisor for the Reds in the southeastern United States for 12 years (1970-81). Doughty was named the assistant director of scouting prior to the 1982 season and he served as director of scouting for five years (December 1982-December 1987). During his years as head of the Reds' scouting department, the organization signed such talented players as Kal Daniels, Chris Sabo, Barry Larkin, Tom Browning and Kurt Stillwell.

Doughty was born on January 21, 1940 in Bowling Green, Kentucky. He earned a bachelor's degree (1962) and a master's degree (1964) from Western Kentucky University, where he also played baseball and basketball. Prior to his association with the Reds, Doughty was a teacher (biology and mathematics) at St. Joseph's High School in Bowling Green for one year (1961-62) and at Bowling Green High School from 1962 until he was hired by Cincinnati in the spring of 1970. He was also one of the state's top coaches in both baseball and basketball, guiding Bowling Green to the 1965 Kentucky State Baseball Championship.

He and his wife Anna have two daughters, Laura (age 20) and Leanna (age 17).

PIRATES MANAGER

Twenty-seven of Jim Leyland's forty-five years have revolved around professional baseball.

Enter this baseball man to a city complete with a baseball history all its own. The result is a combination intently working towards a pennant. In his fifth season as the Bucs' skipper, Leyland continues to foster a strong relationship with Pittsburgh. In return, the city echoes his peers and players in showing its support for him.

Leyland sees the Steel City as an ideal city. "Pittsburgh is an outstanding sports town. It's a year-round sports town," he said. "The fans are very knowledgeable and those are always the best kind to have.

"This is a great franchise and Pirate history is second to none. Pittsburgh is a team made up of men with lots of integrity. It is a team the city can be proud of."

To the club and to the city, Leyland has brought his determination to win and his strong knowledge of baseball which manifests itself in his game plan and in his rapport with the players, media, fans and front office. Having been a player himself, he has a good feel for the way a club should be run.

As a catcher at Perrysburg High School (a suburb of Toledo, Ohio), Leyland signed his first pro contract with the Detroit Tigers in the fall of 1963. He served that organization as a player, minor league coach and minor league manager.

He began his managerial career at the age of 26 when he took over the Tigers' Bristol club of the Appalachian Rookie League. He also managed in the Midwest and Florida State Leagues and for the Evansville (AAA) club in the American Association. Five of his last six Tigers' teams advanced to the playoffs, winning three league championships.

Leyland then served as third base coach and outfield instructor for the Chicago White Sox for four seasons (1982-85) before coming to Pittsburgh.

Bob Smizik, sports writer for the Pittsburgh Press, praises Leyland as one of the best managers in baseball today.

"He is on top of the game strategically. The best thing about him is his rapport with the players—they really respect him."

Leyland stresses mutual respect in the functioning of his club because it creates a positive atmosphere in which the players pull together and play as a team. He cites last season as an example.

"Down the stretch last year, these guys showed integrity and determination and they wouldn't quit. The 1990 season is a new challenge for us. We finished at 74-88 last year but the nucleus is here. Our expectations are high. We have a good ballclub, and a nice chemistry going in.

"R.J. Reynolds and Gary Redus are role players, platoon players who produce. Bobby Bonilla is one of the premier players in the game today. Barry Bonds has excellent credentials. Mike LaValliere is a true competitor, we're glad to have him back. Jay Bell, Jose Lind and Andy Van Slyke read each other well. The addition of Wally Backman is certainly a plus and the acquisitions of Ted Power, Don Slaught and Walt Terrell will help solidify our club. I know we're going to be a better ballclub because of these guys. They are a group that will do anything it takes to win.

"Pitching is always a key to winning and with the addition of Power and Terrell, our staff will show significant depth. John Smiley and Doug Drabek are mainstays. I'm confident when they're on the mound. Bob Walk, Neal Heaton and Doug Bair are dependable veterans and Bill Landrum has proved to be a bright spot as a stopper in the bullpen.

"If we stay healthy we will be a good team. Our team comes to play and the fans like to see that."

The numbers prove Leyland's point. The club came off a disastrous 1985 season in which it drew only 735,900 fans. Leyland has seen that figure increase dramatically in his four seasons at the helm. Pittsburgh fans broke the all-time single season attendance record in 1988 by reaching a mark of 1,866,713.

Pirate fans have taken part in what Leyland considers to be the rejuvenation of baseball in Pittsburgh, something in which he is most proud of playing a part.

"Since I came to Pittsburgh," Leyland said, "the team has grown and the city has seen it grow."

His first Bucco club showed a seven-game improvement over its predecessor. The 1987 team won 27 of its last 38 games and pointed the way to the 1988 season when the club finished runner-up in the N.L. East to the New York Mets. That same year, Leyland was honored by The Sporting News as Co-Manager of-the-Year in the National League along with Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Last year, Pirate fans witnessed Leyland's 300th career win as a major league manager (in a 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies on September 19th) and an eight-game winning streak in late July which included a never-before weekend sweep of the New York Mets at Shea Stadium.

With confidence, Leyland looks ahead.

"As part of this Pirate organization you feel proud. The fans can be proud and I feel proud. I honestly feel the best is yet to come."

PIRATES COACHING STAFF

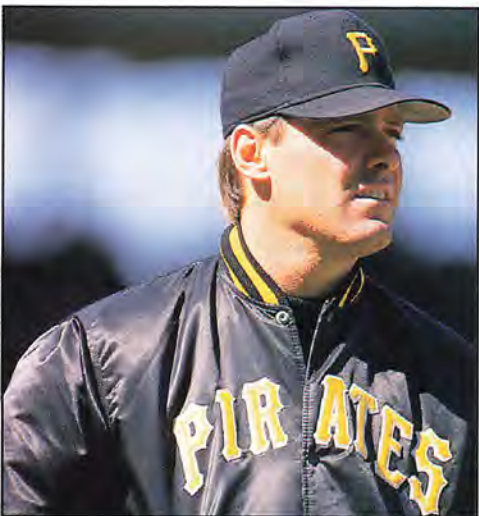

RICH DONNELLY

is in his fifth season as the Pirates' bullpen coach. In that role, he keeps a book on every opposing hitter and goes over the information with the relief corps daily. Prior to coming to Pittsburgh, Donnelly served as the Texas Rangers' first base coach (1983-1985). A veteran of 22 years in professional baseball, the Steubenville, Ohio native spent 12 seasons in the Washington/Texas organization. Donnelly, a former catcher, had a four-year professional playing career prior to becoming manager of the Rangers' Greenville (Class A) club in 1972. He was named the Western Carolina League's Manager-of-the-Year in each of his first three seasons. His Gastonia club won the league championship in 1974. The 43-year-old Donnelly still resides in Steubenville.

RAY MILLER

is in his fourth season as the Pirates' pitching coach. Miller, who managed the Minnesota Twins during parts of the 1985 and 1986 seasons, is best known for his successful stint as pitching coach of the Baltimore Orioles. From 1978-1985 he produced five different 20-game winners, including consecutive Cy Young Award winners Mike Flanagan (1979) and Steve Stone (1980). Baltimore also appeared in the World Series twice during his seven and a half year tenure with the Orioles (1979 and 1983). During his ten year professional career, he pitched in the San Francisco, Cleveland and Baltimore organizations. Miller, 43, is originally from Takoma Park, Maryland but now makes his home in New Athens, Ohio.

was the Pirates' bench coach last season, and will serve as Major League Coordinator of Instruction. In his new role, Kimm will have on-field duties prior to games and assignments in the stands during the action. Kimm came to the Pirates after serving the Cincinnati Reds for five years as the bullpen coach (1984-1987) and third base coach (1988). The former catcher played professionally for twelve years and had major league experience with Detroit, the Chicago White Sox and the Chicago Cubs. In 1976, he was Mark Fidrych's personal catcher during "The Bird's" spectacular rookie season with the Tigers. After retiring as a player following the 1980 season, Kimm returned to baseball as a minor league manager in 1982 before coaching at Cincinnati. Kimm, 38, a Norway, Iowa, native, now lives in Amana, Iowa.

Pirates manager Jim Leyland is reluctant to say the six coaches on his staff are the best in baseball, but he feels it's the ideal coaching staff.

"They're young enough to handle the physical aspects of the game, and they are also old enough in experience to contribute a lot of knowledge," Leyland said. "It's really what I call the closest to a perfect coaching staff."

GENE LAMONT

is in his fifth season as third base coach for the Pirates. In addition, Lamont also works with the catchers and outfielders on their defensive skills. His background includes eight years as a manager in the Kansas City Royals farm system (1978-1985). He was named Southern League Manager-of-the-Year in 1982 after guiding Jacksonville (AA) to an 83-61 record and a berth in the league championship series. A catcher during his playing days (1965-1977), Lamont spent the majority of his career in the Detroit organization. He made a big impression in his major league debut by homering in his first at-bat off the Red Sox' Carl Koonce on September 2, 1970. Lamont, 43, is a native of Rockford, Illinois who now lives in Sarasota, Florida.

MILT MAY

is in his fourth season as the Pirate's hitting instructor. Before his current role, May served as Pittsburgh's advance scout, as well as manager and instructor in the Florida Instructional League, during the 1986 season. The former catcher was selected by the Pirates in the June 1968 Free Agent Draft and played a total of 14 seasons in the majors, including three full years with the Bucs. As a 21-year-old rookie with the Pirates in 1971, he delivered a game-winning pinch hit single in Game Four of the World Series against Baltimore. May compiled a .263 lifetime average with 77 home runs and 443 RBI, before retiring after the 1974 season. The 39-year-old native of Gary, Indiana now resides in Bradenton, Florida.

is in his fourth season as the Pirates' first base coach. Along with teaching the fundamentals of bunting and baserunning, Sandt also works with the infielders prior to the games. A former major league infielder, Sandt was a manager in the Pirate farm system for five years (1982-1986), including three seasons with Hawaii (AAA). He was named Pacific Coast League Manager-of-the-Year in 1984 after guiding the Islanders to an 87-53 mark and a spot in the PCL championship series. His teams compiled a record of 368-337 in his five seasons as a minor league manager, advancing three times to post-season play. Primarily a shortstop, Sandt spent most of his playing career in the Oakland Athletics organization. He also spent time in the St. Louis and Pittsburgh organizations during his twelve full seasons as a player. Behind The Promise.

In 1956 Joe Brown took the reins of a last-place ball club. Four years later, the Pirates and their new general manager celebrated the team's first World Championship in 35 years.

Joe Brown's talent, dedication and understanding of what teamwork can do helped put the Pittsburgh Baseball Club on the road to success.

Although he officially retired as general manager in 1976, Joe Brown's guiding hand was responsible for the team winning six out of ten division titles in the '70s, with World Championships again in '71 and '79.

He continues to play a role in the organization's growth as a scout on the West Coast and as a member of the board of directors.

Blue Cross of Western Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania Blue Shield are proud to honor Joe Brown on the 30th Anniversary of the Pirates' famed 1960 World Championship.

 Danny Murtaugh.

1960 Cy Young Award winner, Vernon Law.

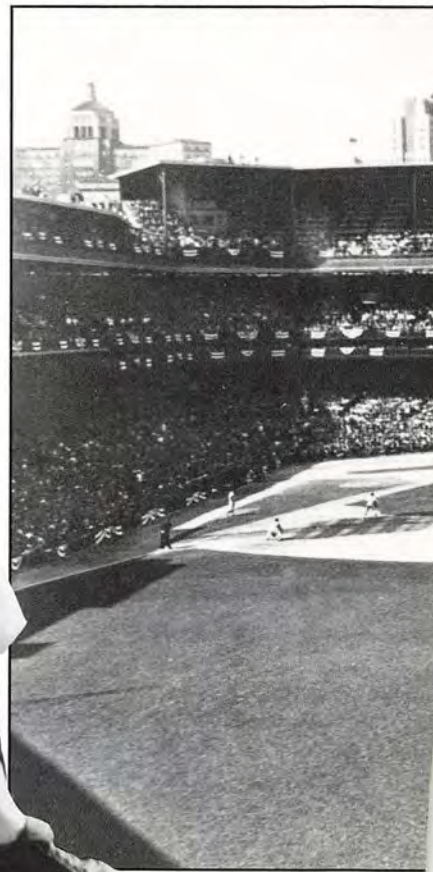

In a newspaper survey conducted last summer, Mickey Mantle listed his greatest disappointment as the New York Yankees' losing the 1960 World Series.

Think about that. Twenty-nine years later, there was still some sting left in the Yankees' four games to three loss to the Pirates.

The Yankees went on to win the Series again in 1961 and '62 but the memory of what happened in '60 hadn't diminished for Mantle. Consider, too, that 1960 was hardly Mantle's only shot at a championship. He played in 12 Series and banked a winner's check seven times.

At least Mantle is able to articulate his disappointment three decades later. After Bill Mazeroski's Series-winning home run, Mantle was one of the Yankees who declined comment. Others were hardly gracious in defeat.

Game One of the World Series was played at For

"I have no doubt I was on the better team," Yankee pinch hitter and ex-Pirate Dale Long said.

"What happened to us?" Roger Maris asked rhetorically.

What happened was the Yankees blew the Pirates out of three games and lost four close ones. As reserve Pirates outfielder Gino Cimoli explained after the seventh game, "They broke all the records and we won the game."

Since the World Series' Most Valuable Player award was instituted in 1955, the Yankees' Bobby Richardson is the only member of a losing team to win it.

The Yankees batted .338 as a team, breaking a 50-year-old record. Before the seventh game was played, they had more hits and runs than any team in Series history. The Yankees outhit the Pirates in all but the fifth game and had at least 13 hits in five of the seven games. The Pirates' pitching staff had an earned run average of 7.11.

Dick Groat is upended by Yankee Tony Kubek.

Pirate Manager Danny Murtaugh questions a call.

Kubek is called out as Groat completes a double play.

"When we were kids in baseball, Mr. (Branch) Rickey always told us that the good teams win the close games," Pirates shortstop Dick Groat said. "Every game that we had a chance to win, we won. Contrary to what they said, the better team won the Series."

The Pirates won the first, fifth and seventh games. Their largest margin of victory was 5-2 in game five.

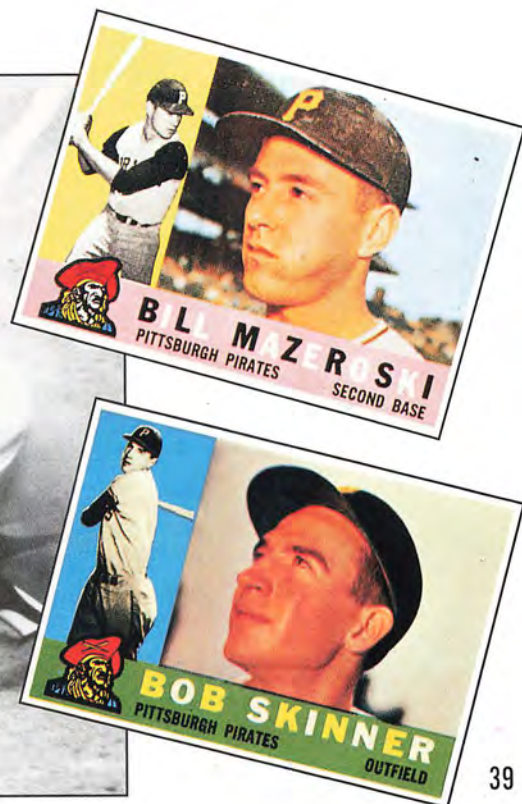

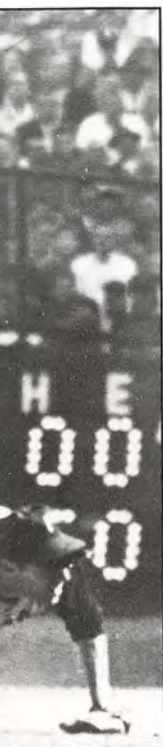

New York's wins were by scores of 16-3, 12-0 and 10-0.

From the Yankees' point of view, there were three major issues, all of which related in some way to the deciding game of the Series.

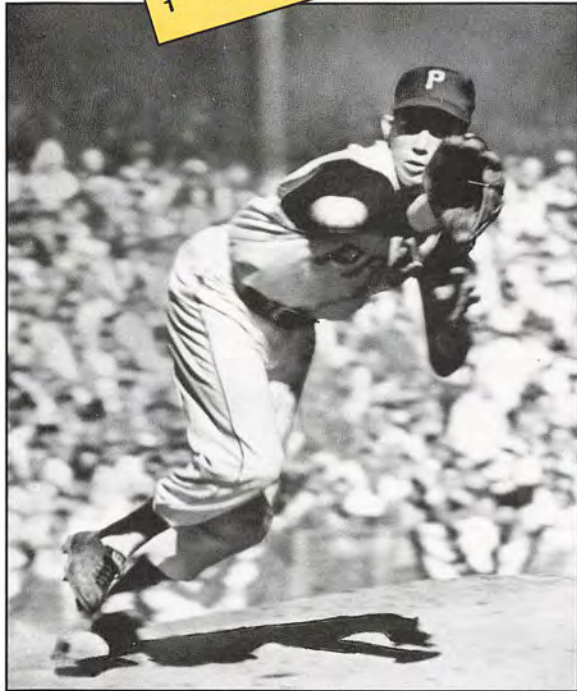

■ Whitey Ford's absence in Game One: Casey Stengel started Art Ditmar, who couldn't get out of the first inning and was charged with three runs. The Pirates won the game, 6-4.

It's traditional for a manager to start his best pitcher in the opener. If the Series goes the limit, the manager has his ace available to pitch three games.

Percy Faith's "Theme From 'A Summer Place'" was the nation's number 1 record for 1960. Except in Pittsburgh.

No matter if the yardstick was sales, radio airplay or juke box action, Pittsburgh's favorite song was "Beat 'Em, Bucs" by Benny Benack and his Orchestra.

The single, on the Robbee label, clocked in under two minutes, perfect for radio. Benack put the city's favorite phrase to a Dixieland beat with utter simplicity.

"The Bucs are going all the way this year" and "Beat 'Em, Bucs" were essentially the lyrics. The melody was borrowed from "Camptown Races," a composition by Pittsburgh native Steven Collins Foster.

"Beat 'Em, Bucs" became a 1960's catch phrase in April when Roger McGovern, a copywriter at Ketchum, MacLeod and Grove was searching for something snappy to use in an Iron City Beer advertising campaign. Legend has it McGovern kicked around several ideas but "Beat 'Em, Bucs" was the one that registered quickly with family and friends.

The Catholic diocese offered the Latin translation, "Vincete eos, Piratae." A Chinese laundry in Squirrel Hill had its version, and a Lebanese restaurant in the East End offered an Arabic interpretation. In Greek it was "Othesate autous kato, Pirateis."

However it was written, it required the comma. Post-Gazette reporter Vince Johnson pointed out the error when a comma-less banner was strung across the front of the City-County building. Without the comma, Johnson said, the banner was actually an invitation for the Bucs to be beaten. The banner was corrected and within a few days, Ketchum, MacLeod and Grove offered free stick-on commas for any banner larger than two by eight feet.

One jokester said the Pirates had better win or, "it will be the comma before the storm."

There were "Beat 'Em, Bucs" neckties for men and panties for women. Nine-month-old Michelle Giece of Penn Hills was pictured in the Post-Gazette wearing only a "Beat 'Em, Bucs" sash. The phrase was on bumper stickers and used in ads throughout the city.

An early Pirates song, called "Fight, Fight, Fight" was long forgotten. "Beat 'Em, Bucs" was universal.

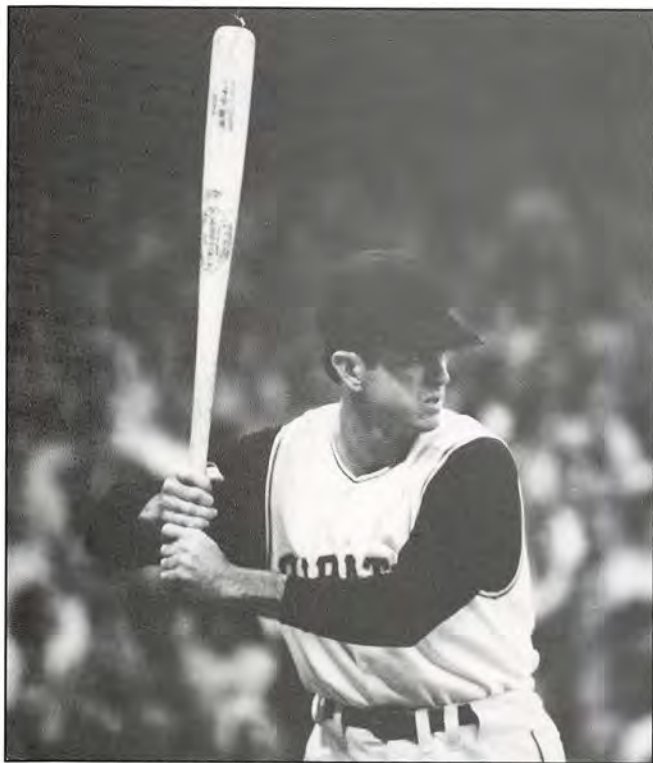

It is worth noting, though, that the man responsible for the anthem was actually banned from Forbes Field. Benack and his band were booked for 40 home games but some Pirate players noticed the team lost when Benack performed.

Baseball superstitions being what they are, the players had a meeting and decided Benack's band was a jinx and shouldn't be allowed back. Benack took the decision philosophically. The climate was not conducive to bucking the Bucs, anyway.

Benack, who remained active in the local music scene until his death a few years ago, seemed genuinely baffled by his one and only chart hit.

"It's just 'Camptown Races' without the doo dah," he said.

Dick Stuart

Roberto Clemente

But Ford sat while Ditmar started. It wasn't that Ditmar was a bad pitcher--in fact, his 15-9 record in 1960 was better than Ford's 12-9. Ford's ERA was 3.08; Ditmar's was 3.06. But while Ditmar was a solid major league pitcher, Ford is a member of Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Ford pitched two games against the Pirates and both were complete game shutouts. He allowed on 11 hits in his 18 innings. In two starts, Ditmar lasted one and two-thirds innings and had an ERA of 21.60.

Ford was nursing some minor arm problems and Stengel later confessed to an interviewer he never thought the Series would go to seven games. That was probably a consideration in Stengel's firing five days after the Series ended.

■ The infield pebble: Forbes Field was known for its rock-hard infield surface but an actual rock played a part in the Pirates' victory.

In the eighth inning of the seventh game, Cimoli led off with a pinch single, Bill Virdon then hit what appeared to be a perfect double play ball. The grounder hit a pebble, though. The ball bounced sharply upward and struck Tony Kubek in the throat. Instead of two outs and the bases empty, the Pirates had two base runners and nobody out. They went on to score five runs and turn a 7-4 deficit into a 9-7 lead.

Kubek had to leave the game and spent the night at the Eye & Ear Hospital in Oakland. The no-dirt, artificial turf infield would come to baseball later, too late to save the Yankees.

■ Jim Coates' failure to cover first base: In the eighth inning, Roberto Clemente hit a slow roller down the first base line. Yankees pitcher Jim Coates went for the ball instead of covering first and Clemente beat the play. Had Coates executed his responsibility properly, Clemente would have been the third out and the Yankees would have escaped with a 7-6 lead. Instead, Viridon scored and Hal Smith followed with a three-run homer to put the Pirates ahead 9-7.

Ralph Terry is widely regarded as the goat of the Series but a case can be made that Coates' mental error was far less excusable.

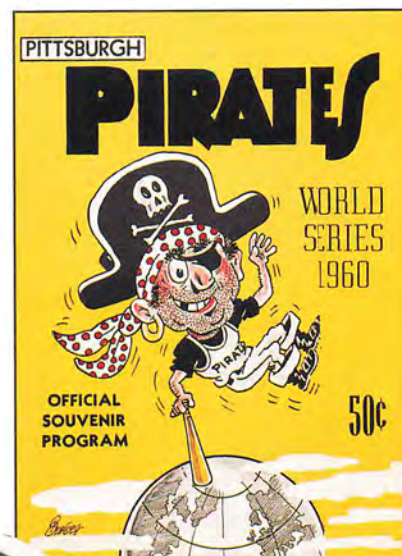

"The Yankees talk about the double play ball that took a bad hop and that was definitely a break," Groat said. "But they had a chance to get out of the inning and they didn't do it because they didn't make a basic play."

The Series featured other details that tend to be overlooked because of the drama of Mazeroski's home run.

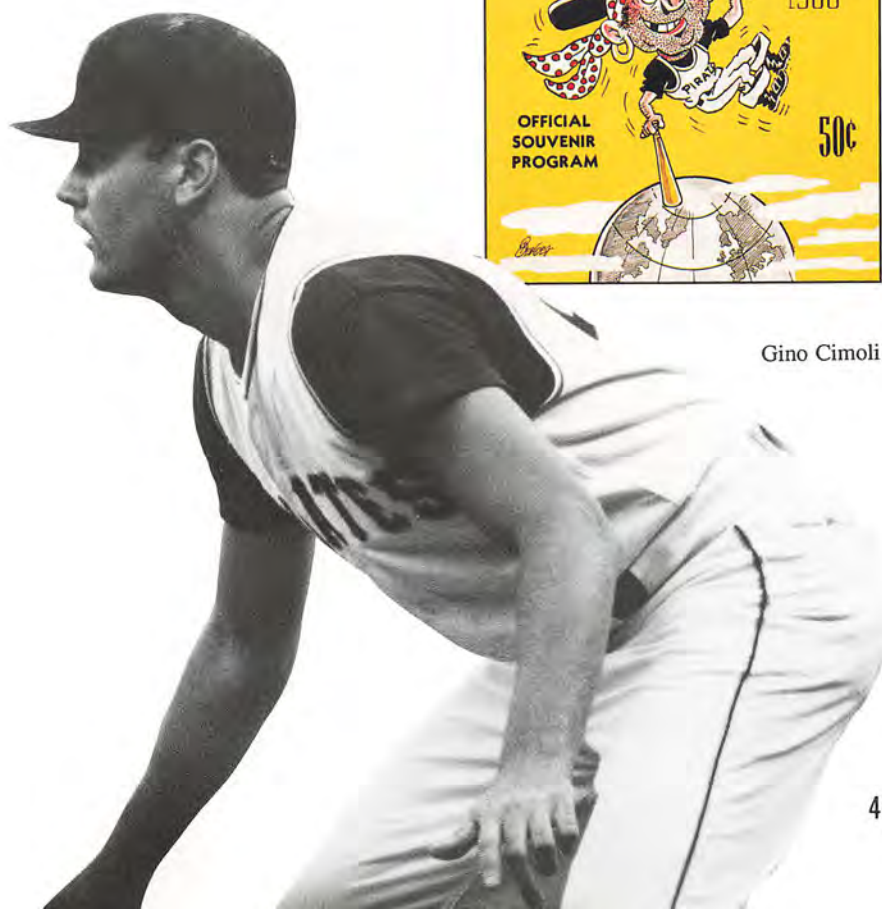

After the Pirates were pounded in the second and third games, Vernon Law and ElRoy Face pitched solidly in the fourth game to even the Series. Law had been bothered by an ankle injured in the celebration after the National League pennant clinching.

Third baseman Don Hoak played with pain caused by an inflamed prostate. Left fielder

Bob Friend

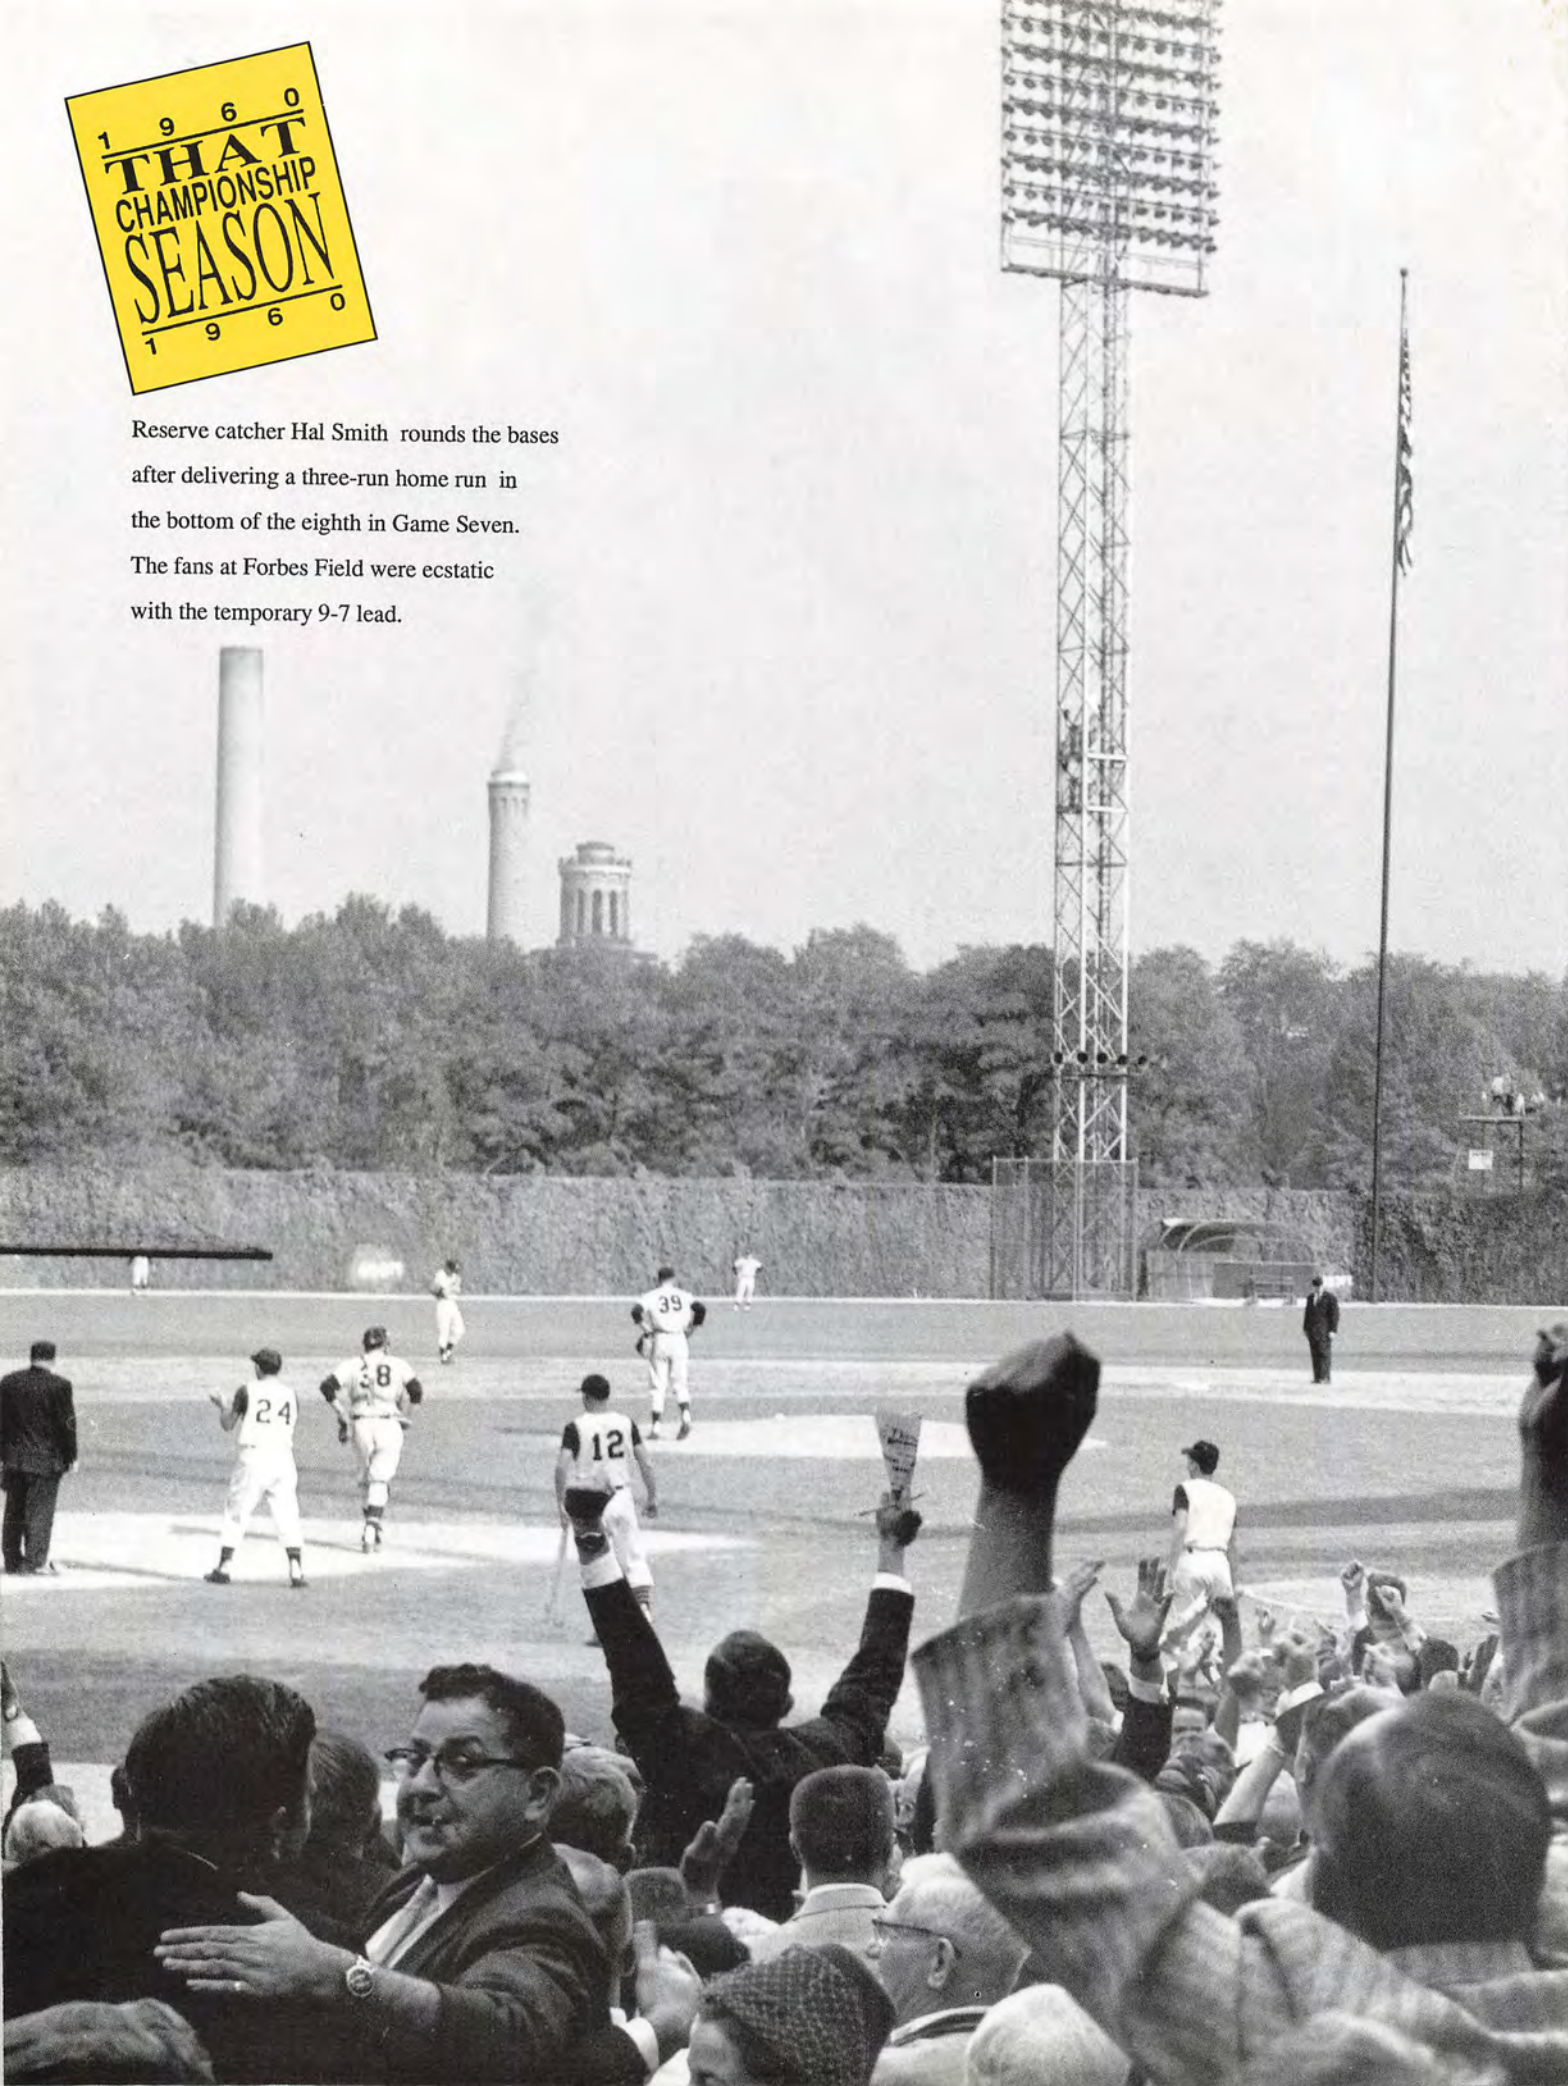

Gino Cimoli

Reserve catcher Hal Smith rounds the bases after delivering a three-run home run in the bottom of the eighth in Game Seven.

The fans at Forbes Field were ecstatic with the temporary 9-7 lead.

30 Little Known Facts About The 1960 World Series

On the 30th anniversary of the Pirates' improbable 1960 World Series win, here are 30 Series-related facts you may have forgotten:

1. Dick Stuart was on deck when Bill Mazeroski hit the Series-winning home run off Ralph Terry. Stuart would have pinch hit for Harvey Haddix.

2. Vinegar Bend Mizell would have pitched for the Pirates had there been a 10th inning.

3. Ralph Terry now plays on the Senior Professional golf tour. According to Sports Illustrated, Chi Chi Rodriguez, a baseball fan, calls Terry, "Maz."

4. The Pirates received 150,000 ticket requests for the Series. The line for standing room tickets started forming five days before the Series began.

5. The price of a World Series program was 50 cents. Regular season scorecards were 15 cents. A 1960 World Series program in mint condition is valued at $100 today.

6. Mazeroski's home run was the last pitch of the Series. The first pitch was Vernon Law's called strike to Tony Kubek.

7. Pitt moved its home football game against Miami to a 10 a.m. start to avoid conflicting with the third game of the Series on October 8.

8. Rusty McCarthy, a Texas oilman and Pirates fan, presented each of the players with a $20 Stetson hat. Stuart had the biggest hat size at 7 and 3/8; ElRoy Face's 6 and 7/8 was the smallest.

9. Ronnie Sarazan sang the national anthem before the seventh game.

10. While WIIC-TV (now WPXI) carried NBC's Series coverage, the other stations broadcast old movies. "Mary Jane's Pa," made in 1935 with Guy Kibbee and Aline MacMahon, ran opposite the game on KDKA-TV. WTAE countered with "I Married A Doctor," a 1936 release starring Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson.

11. After the Yankees won the second game 16-3, vendors outside Forbes Field reduced the price of $1 Pirate pennants by 50 percent.

12. Several people have claimed to have retrieved the baseball from Mazeroski's home run. None of the baseballs were authenticated.

13. Someone did think to recover Mazeroski's bat. It has been in his possession and was on loan to the Hall of Fame last summer.

14. Only one game lasted longer than three hours--the Yankees' 16-3 win in the second game took 3:16.

15. Attendance for the seventh game was the second smallest of the Series. The official count was 36,683, seven more than attended the first game.

16. George Witt was the only Pirate pitcher who did not allow a run in the Series. He worked 2 and 2/3 innings.

17. Witt, Haddix (2.45), Law (3.44) and Tom Cheney were the only Pirate pitchers to escape the Series with ERAs under 5.00.

18. Catcher Bob Oldis was the only Pirate position player who did not bat in the Series. He caught the ninth inning in the fourth and fifth games. Joe Christopher didn't have an official at bat because he was hit by a pitch in his only plate appearance.

19. Hal Smith led the Pirates in hitting at .375 (3-for-8).

20. Four members of the Pirates' 25-man roster have sons who have played in the major leagues: Vance Law (Vernon), Joel Skinner (Bob), Dick Schofield (Dick, Sr.) and Gary Green (Fred).

21. Each Pirate player received a full winner's share of $8,417.94. It was $2,813.24 less than each Dodger received for winning the 1959 Series.

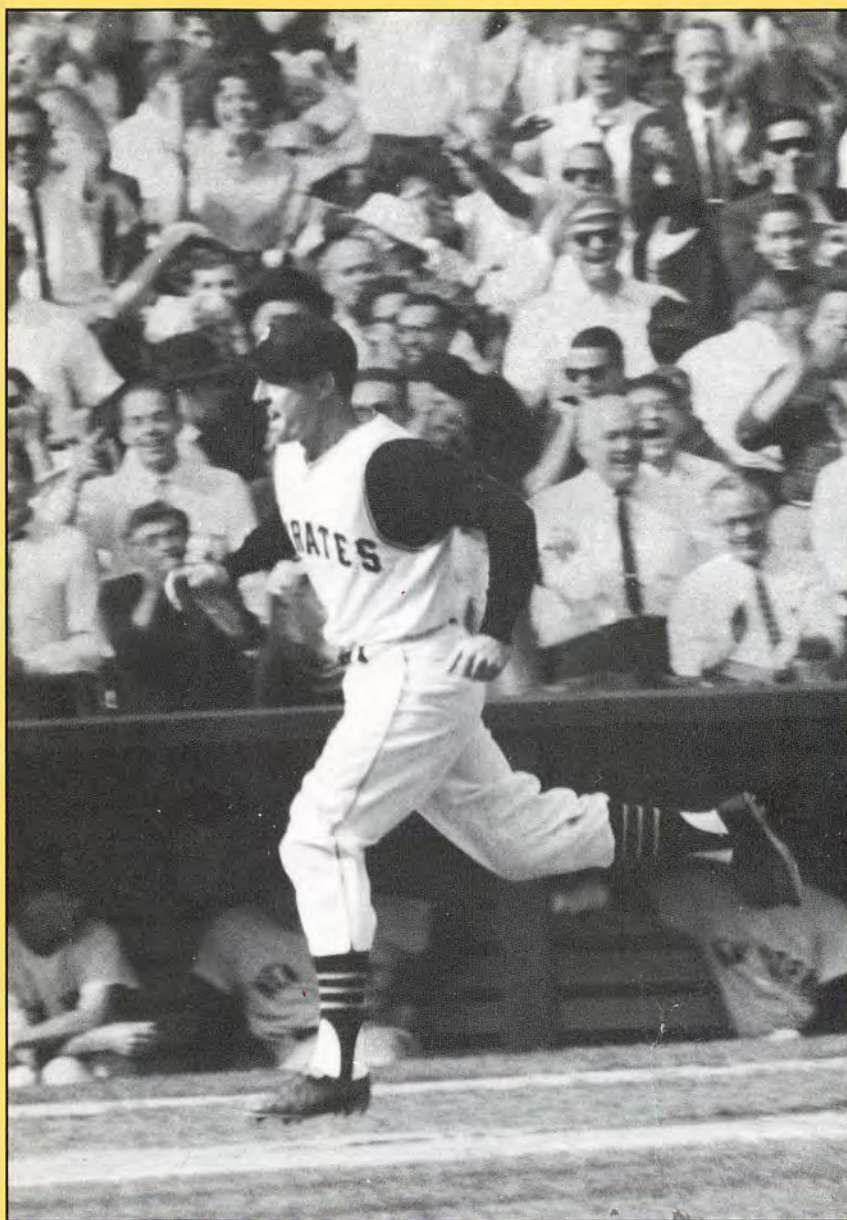

22. Mazeroski, 24, was the youngest player on the Pirates' Series roster. The oldest was Rocky Nelson, 35.

23. The Pirates roster included two college basketball All-Americans--Duke's Dick Groat and Mississippi's Joe Gibbon.

24. Announcer Chuck Thompson is heard saying "Art Ditmar throws..." on the tape of the radio broadcast as Terry delivers the fateful pitch. Thompson had seconds earlier identified Terry as the pitcher. He was trying to say "Art Ditmar throws in the Yankee bullpen" but was interrupted by Mazeroski's swing.

25. The Pirates hit four home runs in the Series and two were by Mazeroski. His first, in the first game off Jim Coates, was his first Forbes Field homer since July.

26. Public Safety Director Louis Rosenberg estimated that 300,000 people crowded downtown streets to celebrate the Series win. There were 26 arrests--20 for public intoxication and six for disorderly conduct.

Bill Mazeroski

27. Rosenberg ordered the inbound lanes of the Liberty and Fort Pitt Tunnels closed at 9 p.m. because downtown had reached a saturation point.

29. The October 14th Pittsburgh Press published 32 Series related photos and an editorial cartoon.

28. The cost of cleaning up downtown streets was estimated at $50,000. By 9 a.m. on October 14, 110 tons of paper had already been collected.

30. Mazeroski ended the 1960 Series at 3:35 p.m. on October 13. This year's World Series is scheduled to open on October 16.

City Hails Its Conquering Heroes

Pirate Manager Danny Mazaroski is doused with champagne and beer by team after Bucc signed pennant.

Coach Mazaroski Vanden prout toast for Denny. Med scene was in clubhouse of County Stadium, in Milwaukee.

Bob Skinner jammed his thumb in the first game and didn't play again until the seventh game.

Try this definition of timely hitting: the Pirates hit four home runs in the Series; half came in the last two innings of the last game.

The one everyone remembers is Mazaroski's, a hanging 1-0 slider driven over the left field wall at 3:35 p.m. on a sunny, abnormally warm Thursday afternoon.

Look at the film and notice the left fielder Yogi Berra's nonchalant u-turn for the dugout when he realized the ball was gone. Take note of Mazaroski's wild windmilling as he circled the bases, an uncharacteristic display of emotion from one of Pittsburgh's quietest players.

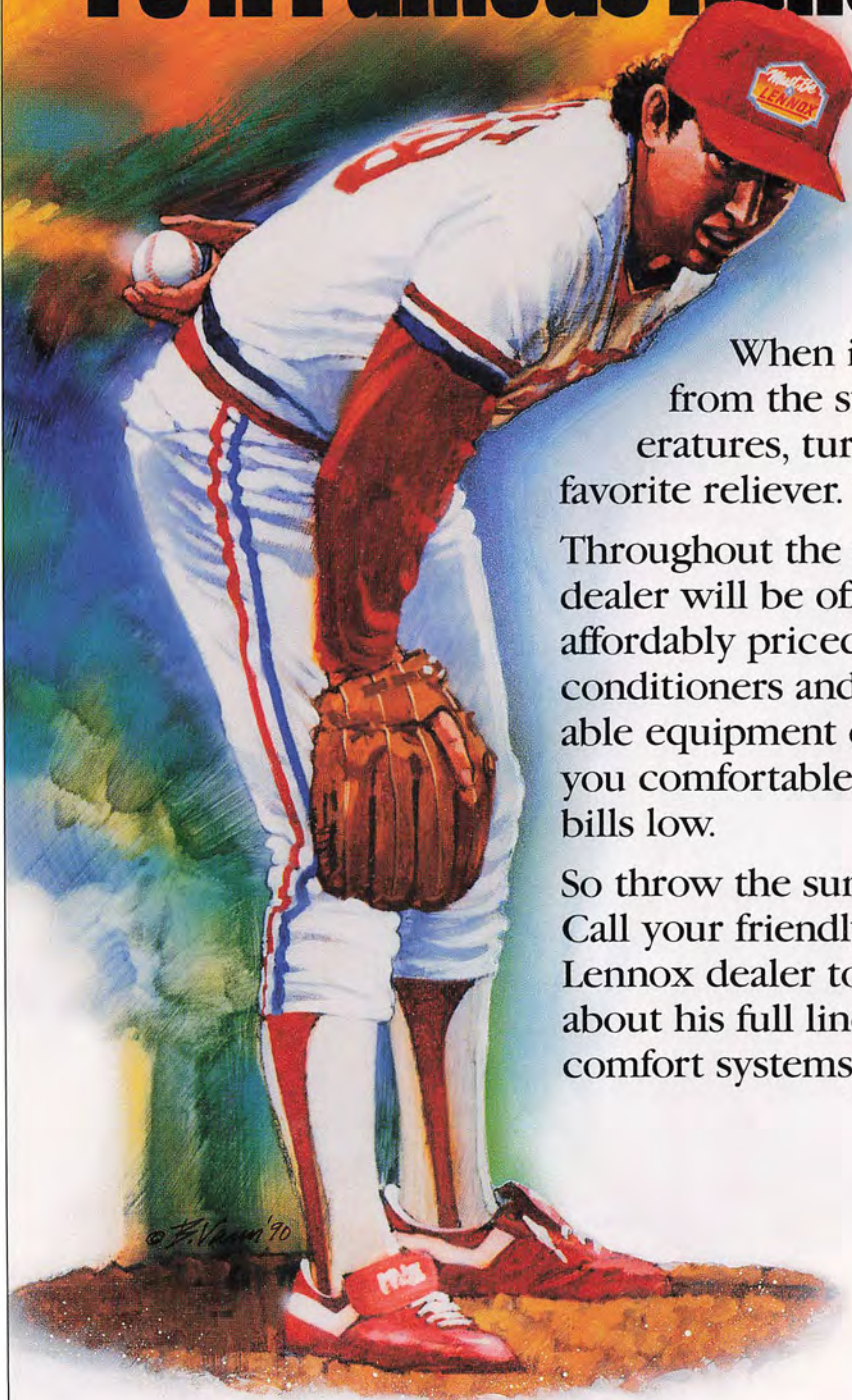

What were the thoughts of the man who launched the city's biggest party?

"All I could think of was we beat the Yankees," Mazaroski said.

Mickey Mantle still hasn't gotten over that.

One in a series recognizing the little things that add up to Pittsburgh—the city we at Westinghouse have called home for over 100 years.

Some people only dream of following in the footsteps of Pittsburgh's greatest athletes. Yet, there are thousands who do so every day.

In Oakland, a flagstone path leads from the Cathedral of Learning to Heinz Chapel. A path that's flanked by the names of some of Pittsburgh's finest athletes. Players who gave their sport everything they had. And gave our city more thrills than it ever expected.

This fall, new names will be added to the walk. Joining the likes of Don Hennon, All-American basketball player. Jerry Richey, first Pittsburgher to run a four-minute mile. Kathy Stetler, four-time All-American swimmer. And Joe Walton, head coach of the New York Jets. A tradition that began nearly 40 years ago. And just one of the many details that makes Pittsburgh a unique and endlessly fascinating place to live and work.

You can be sure... if it's Westinghouse

PIRATES BEHIND THE SC

JOHN HALLAHAN

WARREN SIPP

In terms of seniority, JOHN HALLAHAN is the leader in the Pirate clubhouse. Known as "Hully", he began his career with the Bucs as the visiting batboy and clubhouse helper at the age of 13. After serving in the U.S. Army (1946-48), he became the Pirates' assistant clubhouse manager. He was named the Pirates' head equipment manager in 1957 and has served the organization in that capacity for the past 33 seasons. His job is to order all the team's equipment, maintain it and also transport it when the team is on the road.

Hallahan arrives at the ballpark about 9:00AM for a day game and about 2:00 PM for night games. Most often his job requires him to remain at the stadium until two or three hours after the game. In addition to his regular duties, Hallahan is also responsible for providing food service in the home and visiting clubhouses before and after Pirate home games.

WARREN SIPP joined the Pirate organization as Strength and Conditioning Coach on April 1, 1986. Formerly an Assistant Professor in the University of Pittsburgh's Health, Physical and Recreation Education Department since 1983, he had also been Pitt's Varsity Sports Strength and Conditioning Coach.

He is primarily responsible for the year-round conditioning of the Bucs' major league players, but he also works periodically with the club's minor leaguers. Sipp also prepares the weight-room at Three Rivers Stadium for the Pirate players and opposing teams.

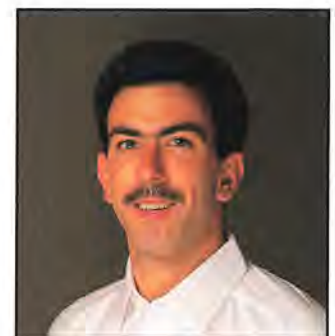

Sipp's responsibility is to help the players maintain a level of conditioning that will allow them to function at their fullest potential. Along with those duties, he puts the players on weight training programs and coordinates them closely with the trainers and medical staff.

KENT BIGGERSTAFF and DAVE TUMBAS comprise the Pirates' training staff. Together they are responsible for the care, prevention and rehabilitation of injuries.

Biggerstaff is in his ninth year as a Pirate trainer and his fifth as the club's head trainer. After 14 seasons as a trainer in the Mets' and Brewers' minor league systems, he joined the Pirate organization in 1981 as trainer at Portland in the Triple-A Pacific Coast League. In 1982, "Biggie" was named assistant trainer at the major league level.

DAVE TUMBAS

ENES

Tumbas is in his fifth year as assistant trainer and his ninth as a trainer in the Pittsburgh organization. He trained for the Pirates at the Class-A level for three years (Greenwood in 1982, Alexandria in 1983 and Prince William in 1984) before moving to the Double-A level at Nashua in 1985. In addition to his work with the Pirates, Dave served as trainer for the San Francisco 49ers at training camp in 1981 and again at the 1982 Super Bowl.

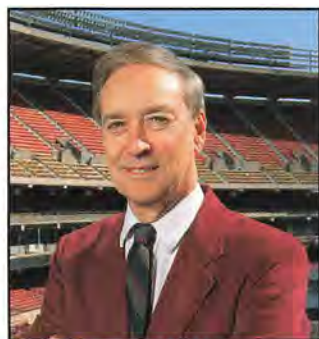

Together, Biggerstaff and Tumbas provide information to Manager Jim Leyland concerning injuries to players. The skipper uses this data when deciding if a player is capable of performing on a given day and to what extent.

VINCE LASCHEID is in his tenth season as the organist at Three Rivers Stadium. Known for his musical creativity, Lascheid also performs during Penguin games at the Civic Arena and has also played during Steeler games.

TIM DEBACCO is in his third season as the Pirates public address announcer. Along with making all in-game announcements, the 25-year-old DeBacco is in charge of the musical selection heard at the ballpark. In addition to his work with the ART MCKENNAN is in his fifth decade as the Pirates' public address announcer. The 83-year-old McKennan can still be heard at Three Rivers Stadium during Sunday afternoon home games. His association with the Bucs began in 1919 when, at the age of 11, he was a clubhouse boy at Forbes Field.

BRAD HINES is in his fifth season as the Pirates' videographer. His duties include video taping future opponents for scouting purposes and filming the Pirate players during games. The players view these films to discover opponents' tendencies and faults or weaknesses in their own batting stance or pitching delivery.

The Pirates' top farm club is Buffalo of the Triple-A American Association. In 1989, the Bisons finished in second place in the Eastern Division behind Indianapolis (Expos) with an 80-62 record. The 80 wins were the most by a Buffalo team since 1964. Playing their second season at Pilot Field, Buffalo drew 1,132,183 fans, becoming the first minor league team in history to draw more than one million fans for two straight seasons. In 1988, the Bisons set an all-time minor league single-season attendance record by drawing 1,186,651 fans.

Shortstop JAY BELL, pitcher DORN TAYLOR and designated hitter STEVE HENDERSON were selected to play in the 1989 Triple-A All-Star game. For the season, Bell batted .285 and led the club in home runs (10) and RBI (54). He was promoted to the Pirates in late July. Henderson, who finished the season with a .298 average and 45 RBI in 100 games, will serve as a coach for the Bisons this year.

Taylor finished with the leagues's fourth best ERA (2.58) while leading Buffalo with five complete games. He tied BOB PATTERSON for the club lead in strikeouts (102). Lefthander MORRIS MADDEN was named to the American Association's postseason All-Star team after compiling a 12-8 record and a 3.39 ERA. SCOTT MEDVIN was Buffalo's most frequently used reliever, going 7-6 with a 2.30 ERA and 10 saves in 54 appearances. Righty LOGAN EASLEY led the staff with 13 saves.

Manager TERRY COLLINS is in his second year as skipper of the Bisons. The 40-year-old Collins managed in the Los Angeles Dodgers' farm system before he was named to his current post in September of 1988. Collins was named Manager-of-the-Year in the Pacific Coast League in 1988 after leading the Albuquerque Dukes (Dodgers' AAA) to an 86-56 record and a first place finish in the South Division. In 1987, he was named Minor League Manager-of-the-Year by THE SPORTING NEWS after guiding Albuquerque to the PCL championship. Collins' teams have reached postseason play five times in eight years.

Previously, Bombard managed in the Cincinnati Reds' organization at Cedar Rapids (Class A) in 1988 and Tampa (Class A) in 1987. He was named the Midwest League Manager-Of-The-Year in 1988 after guiding Cedar Rapids to an overall record of 87-53 and the league championship. SPIN WILLIAMS, pitching coach at Salem in 1989, returns to Harrisburg in that role this year. He had spent the 1987 and 1988 season as pitching coach for the Senators.

Outfielder WES CHAMBERLAIN was named the Eastern League's MVP after batting .306 with 21 home runs and 87 RBI (all totals led the Senators). He led the league in RBI, hits (144) and total bases (239) and finished second in batting. The Salem Buccaneers, Pittsburgh's top Class-A farm club, finished the 1989 campaign with a 63-75 record. Despite the subpar season, the Bucs led the Carolina League with a .261 team batting average. Salem also broke the franchise attendance record for the third consecutive season, attracting 121,581 fans to Municipal Field.

STAN CLIBURN, who guided the Pirates' Augusta (Class A) farm club to the South Atlantic League championship last season, will be the Salem skipper in 1990. CHRIS LEIN, a pitching coach in the Pirate organization the past six years, will fill that role for the Buccaneers in 1990.

Salem placed four players on the Carolina League All-Star team. Starter RANDY TOMLIN (12-6, 3.25 ERA) and reliever JOE AUSANIO (5-4, 2.12, 20 saves) were both named to the squad. Tomlin, a 23-year-old lefthander, tossed a no-hitter on 5/28 at Kinston (Indians). Ausanio led the Carolina League in saves and finished second in appearances (54) while being named the top relief pitcher in the league. The 24-year-old righty also pitched 21 consecutive scoreless innings from 7/15 to 8/19 (10 games).

Also being named to the starting All-Star squad was outfielder MOISES ALOU and third baseman JOHN WEHNER. Alou hit .302 with 14 home runs and 53 RBI with the Bucs in a little over half a season before being promoted to Harrisburg. Wehner, a graduate of Pittsburgh's Carrick High School, hit .301 with 14 homers and 73 RBI and stole 21 bases.

Bradenton is Pittsburgh's affiliate in the Gulf Coast League. Last season the Pirates compiled a 21-42 record and finished eighth in the league standings. Bradenton plays its home games at McKechnie Field which also serves as the site of the Pirates' spring training games. Each year, the majority of the Pirates' draftees and other free agent signees report to Bradenton before being designated for further assignment.

Last year's number one draft pick, WILLIE GREENE, hit .279 and led the club with five home runs before being promoted to Princeton in the Appalachian Rookie League. Sewickley (PA) native JOEL PITCAVAGE was one of Bradenton's leading hitters last season. The 23-year-old outfielder hit .324 before being promoted to Princeton.

Righthander KEVIN RYCHEL finished second in the Gulf Coast League with 79 strikeouts in just 67 innings. SCOTT BROWN also pitched well for the Pirates, leading the club with four saves and posting a 2.81 ERA in 11 appearances.

JULIO GARCIA, who managed for the Pirates at Princeton last season, will be the skipper for Bradenton in 1990. Garcia is in his third season as a manager in the Pirate farm system. Former Pirate pitcher BRUCE KISON returns for his fourth season as pitching coach. Kison won 115 games in the major leagues and pitched nine seasons for Pittsburgh (1971-1979). WOODY HUYKE, who managed at Bradenton from 1974-1989, returns as a coach this season. ■

PIRATES BROADCASTERS

A new voice joins the Pirates' broadcast crew for the 1990 season. Kent Derdivanis joins Lanny Frattare, Jim Rooker and Steve Blass in calling all the Pirate action. The four men will work on all three media -- radio, television and cable television with Frattare and Derdivanis calling the play-by-play and Rooker and Blass serving as color analysts.

Frattare, the "Voice of the Pirates," is in his 15th season as a Pirate broadcaster. Only Bob Prince (28 years) and Rosey Roswell (19 years) have described Pirate action longer. The Rochester, New York native began his association with the Pirates in 1974 when he served as broadcaster for Pittsburgh's Triple-A affiliate, the Charleston Charlies. Frattare did the Charlies' games for two years before joining the Pirates' broadcast team in 1976. He became the Bucs' #1 play-by-play man in 1980.

Rooker is back for his tenth season of broadcasting Pirate baseball. The former lefthanded pitcher won 103 games during his 13-year major league career, including 82 in eight seasons with Pittsburgh. He had his finest season in 1974, posting a 15-11 record and a 2.77 ERA. Rooker was also a member of the Bucs' 1979 World Championship team. This past off-season, he completed a 300-mile walk from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, raising more than $38,000 for local charities.

Blass joined the KDKA-TV and TCI Cable broadcast crews in 1986. He also worked with Prince on Pirate cable telecasts in 1982 and 1983. Blass, a former righthanded pitcher, spent his entire 10-year big league career with Pittsburgh and compiled a 103-76 record. He was one of the Pirates' heroes in the 1971 World Series when he picked up complete-game victories in Game Three and Game Seven. The Canaan, Connecticut native had his finest year in 1972 when he went 19-8 with a 2.29 ERA and was named to the National League All-Star team.

Derdivanis comes to the Pirate broadcast team after spending the past seven years as the voice of the Phoenix Firebirds, the Triple-A affiliate of the San Francisco Giants. The Salinas, California native has broadcast an estimated 1,500 professional baseball games over the past 13 years. His play-by-play background includes two years at the major league level with the Milwaukee Brewers (1981) and the Boston Red Sox (1984). Derdivanis also spent the past four years as the television voice for the football and basketball squads at the University of Arizona.

During the 1990 season, all Pirate games can once again be heard on flagship station KDKA Radio (1020 AM) and over 40 other stations along the Pirate Radio Network. The Pirates and KDKA Radio have been affiliated with each other every year since 1955. The Pirate Radio Network brings the action to fans in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, West Virginia and Florida (Bradenton).

A total of 110 of the Pirates' 162 regular season games will be available for viewing on the club's commercial and cable TV packages in 1990. Fifty games will be carried by KDKA-TV and seven other Pirate Television Network stations. An additional 60 games will be broadcast by the KBL Entertainment Network (TCI Cable) which has outlets in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Ohio and West Virginia.

In addition to the local schedules, the Pirates will appear on national television four times during the 1990 season -- twice on CBS's Game-of-the-Week and twice on the ESPN Sunday Night Package.
